Crick Hollow Farm (Part of Resurvey on Stull's Forest)

Architectural Survey File

This is the architectural survey file for this MIHP record. The survey file is organized reverse-chronological (that is, with the latest material on top). It contains all MIHP inventory forms, National Register nomination forms, determinations of eligibility (DOE) forms, and accompanying documentation such as photographs and maps.

Users should be aware that additional undigitized material about this property may be found in on-site architectural reports, copies of HABS/HAER or other documentation, drawings, and the “vertical files” at the MHT Library in Crownsville. The vertical files may include newspaper clippings, field notes, draft versions of forms and architectural reports, photographs, maps, and drawings. Researchers who need a thorough understanding of this property should plan to visit the MHT Library as part of their research project; look at the MHT web site (mht.maryland.gov) for details about how to make an appointment.

All material is property of the Maryland Historical Trust.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Crick Hollow Farm is located along the north side of Beaver Creek Road in Washington County, Maryland. It is situated on a rise of ground above the Beaver Creek and faces east or toward the creek.

The building is a two-story, four-bay stone dwelling with black and white trim. The facade wall is laid with roughly coursed rubble fieldstone while other walls display rubble stone. A two-story shed roof wing which shows more than one period of building extends to the rear or west of the structure. There is no decorative stone work associated with the exterior of the building.

Windows are present in all elevations of the house. At the north end of the house the pairs of openings are set well to the west side of the wall. First story windows of the main section of the structure contain nine-over-six light double-hung sashes. Windows at the second floor level have six-over-six pane sashes. All are held in pegged frames which are rather wide and are finished with a bead. The windows are flanked by paneled shutters at the first story and louvered shutters at the second floor level.

The main entrance is located in the second bay from the north end of the house. The entrance way is quite simple, holding a six-panel door under a narrow four-light transom with framing similar to that of the windows. A modern, one-bay entrance porch sheds the front door.

The roof is of corrugated sheet metal which terminates with a barge board set directly against the end walls of the building. Brick chimneys rise from inside each gable end and from inside the end of the el. A modern concrete block chimney is located at the exterior of the most recent section of the el.

At the facade the cornice is finished with symmetrically molded trim. Simple boxing finishes the eaves at the rear of the house.

Near the dwelling is a one-bay, one-and-a-half story spring house. Its pegged windows contain six-over-three light double-hung sashes at the main floor. The roof is of wooden shingles. A brick chimney rises from inside the west gable end of this structure where doors are located at both the ground and upper levels.

The house is in excellent condition and stands on property containing 23.52 acres.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The area of significance of this house is its architecture. A four-bay stone structure with an off-center front door, it represents a major architectural group in Washington County and the Cumberland Valley. Many such dwellings date from the first half of the 19th century.

Although the specific date of the Crick Hollow farmhouse is not known at the present time, evidence that is available suggests that it was built early in the 19th century.

The owner has stated that according to tradition the house was built by the Funk family. Samuel Funk acquired the property from John Witmer and Peter Newcomer, executors for the will of Samuel Newcomer some time after his death in 1811. The property was in the Funk family until 1966 when it was purchased by the present owner.
