Project Details:

Project Justification:

The Site File contains the short report of the 1982 excavation. At the request of the Chesapeake Bay Maritime Museum, archeological investigation was undertaken within the remaining foundation of the Lee Haven Quarter following removal of the structure. Archeologists from the Maryland Historical Trust and Salisbury State College conducted work at the site in late 1982.

Project Objectives:

-Examine the interior of the building foundation

Research Potential:

The Lee Haven Site (18TA206) represents one of the earliest frame dwellings still extant in Talbot County, Maryland. The Chesapeake Bay Maritime Museum in St. Michael's, Maryland reconstructed the original structure. The reconstructed Lee Haven Quarter is located behind the 'Oystering on the Chesapeake' exhibit on the museum grounds. Following the archeological investigations, the remnant foundation was destroyed by the then current land owner.
